PREFACE.

NOTHING was further from my mind, in commencing this body of references, than the idea of making it available to others as well as myself. On assuming the pastorship of a church in 1820, I purchased, under the guidance of my honored instructors in theology, Drs. Staughton, Alexander, and Miller, about two thousand volumes. But to many of them I was a stranger, and often found that I had help at hand when it was too late for my purpose. For my own convenience, I arranged the entire contents of my library in the manner here exhibited. For aid in future investigations, references were added, as important books came under my notice—in Reviews, or elsewhere. Lying constantly on my desk for over forty years, and receiving almost daily additions, the book grew, without any sensible deduction of time from my proper pursuits; and since my retirement from professional life, I have found pleasant occupation in endeavoring to give it completeness.

So far as I know, the work is unique, so that whatever may be its deficiences, it will be useful as far as it goes. There are bibliothecas, each of which was received favorably by the learned, but all so different in design from this, that it will lose none of its value when placed by their side. Few of them can now be had, and nearly all of them were published more than a century ago, when there were few valuable theological books in the English language. Such as desire to consult them, are referred to the head "Bibliography."

Theology has become the most voluminous of all the sciences. A minister now can read through very few of the teeming productions of the press, while there are many he must consult. In the English language alone, there are, I suppose, a quarter of a million of religious books. To become familiar with these, to say nothing of an equal number in Latin, German, and French, would require a thousand lives. Hence the absolute need of an aid like this, to enable the student to consult just those books, or parts of books, which will furnish him the required assistance.

Persons who have given special attention to some one topic, will probably be acquainted with authors on that point which are not here adduced. But such will not forget that other parts of the book, and perhaps that very part, will render them good service.

The omission which they discover may have been through my ignorance or oversight, but in thousands of cases, such omission is the result of self-imposed restraint. The book may be out of print, or very rare, or superseded by a better, or of small value compared with those which are mentioned. My aim is not to preserve the whole sum of theological literature from that oblivion which much of it merits, but to furnish ready reference to what is still both valuable and accessible. Nor am I willing to hide meritorious authors in a crowd; nor to waste a student's time in searching for books which he cannot find; nor by amassing references, useless or merely curious, to give my book a scholarly and complete appearance, and destroy its utility. Zealous bibliographers enumerate every title they can find, though the book may be nowhere in existence, and love to append to their notice, "rare;" "very rare;" "only fifty copies printed;" "unnoticed hitherto," etc. But I desire neither the credit of authorship, nor the gratification of the learned, and have no other ambition than to help the industrious. No small labor, therefore, has been spent in making careful omissions, and many more would have been made, were it not that a book may be of signal use, though not the best on the subject; and may be within reach, when a better one is not. On a few subjects, such as "English Bible," and "New Version," all the writers which have come to my knowledge are named.

"The Fathers" are constantly referred to, though the subjects may have been much better handled by others. This respect seems due to antiquity. In all cases, their testimony as to facts is important. It is desirable also to keep open the original sources of controversial theology, and to trace the succession of sacred literature. That so many of the references are to old books, will be no objection to scholars. On some of the subjects, nearly all the literature is old; and the aggregate of the good theology of all past ages, is vastly greater than the amount produced in our single age. The zeal of publishers keeps new books before the public, and the student is much less likely to be ignorant of these than of those of older date.

Lists of editions of the Hebrew and Greek scriptures, and of the Septuagint, Vulgate, and other versions, are omitted, because not only are the "Biblia" named separately in booksellers' catalogues, but there are numerous compilations of this sort, which leave nothing to be done in that department. I have mentioned the best of these under "Bibliography," and "Printed editions."

Bodies of Divinity, Bible Dictionaries, Church Histories, and Commentators, are named in their proper places; but as they are themselves works of general reference, they are not referred to under the several topics they embrace, except they discuss some one particularly and largely. The inquirer will, of course, consult such of them as are within his reach.

The abridgement of titles is the result of much reflection, and has cost much labor. To have given them in full would have trebled the cost of the book, without increasing its value. Enough of each title is given to preclude embarrassment or uncertainty.

To assort books accurately is impossible, for some may properly be placed under divers heads; but all inconvenience on this score is obviated by the references to kindred heads.

References are not made to volumes and pages, because the diversity of editions would make them not only useless but perplexing. When a work is divided into parts and chapters, the number is given. Single sermons and pamphlets are omitted, because generally ephemeral, and always difficult to find.

The date of the first publication of a book is given,* where it seemed desirable, as under Commentators, Common Prayer, Concordances, English Bible, Geography, Histories, Missions, Palestine, Theology, etc. The date given in catalogues is only that of the edition there mentioned, and in some of the best, dates are not given at all. Let the owner of this book undertake to put the date of the first editions to the works named under any single head, and he will be convinced of the folly of attempting it for all. To do it as far as I have, has been very troublesome, and in many cases it required an examination of the biography of the author. In Law, Medicine, or Science, the date of a publication may be useful; but theology has a positive basis in Revelation, and he who in any age writes well on sacred subjects, writes for all ages. If the student finds the aid he requires, it is enough. Besides, there are few important books which have not been reprinted, perhaps more than once; and some of the oldest are still being reproduced, often with valuable editorial improvements. Whenever a book relates to "the present time," or the state of a country at a certain period, the date is given, if possible;† and when some particular edition is greatly preferable, it is designated.

Observations on the comparative value of books are sparingly introduced, preferring to omit works of small merit, if there are good ones on that topic, not too rare, except when it seemed well to put the reader on his guard. The little reliance which can be placed on such notices is illustrated by the specimens below, selected because they are the utterances of well-known men in regard to well-known books.

Wake's New Version of the Psalms. "Well drawn up." "Notes judicious."—British Critic. "No value."—Orme.

McKnight on the Epistles. "Luminous and valuable."—Parkhurst. "Not often paralleled."—British Critic. "Translation rash, uncouth, and

* Some of these dates are disputed by scholars. I have intended to give those most usually assigned.

† Guild, in his useful "Librarian's Manual," discriminates between intellectual and natural bibliography. The former term he applies to the consideration of the contents of books; the latter, to notices of the number of volumes, date, size, price, and rarity of editions or of particular copies. My tastes do not lead me to the latter class of inquiries, and if they did, I should not mingle both in one book.

often ungrammatical. The notes tend more to perplex than enlighten."—Lowndes. "With two exceptions, scarcely any doctrine is rightly stated."—Orme.

Draper's Lectures on the Liturgy. "Perspicuous, sensible, and evangelical."—Eclectic Review. "No small portion is jargon."—Critical Review.

Burnet's History of the Reformation was honored, as no other book ever was, by a vote of thanks in the British Parliament. "Impartial, liberal, laborious."—Prof. Smyth. "Burnet is, without doubt, the English Eusebius."—Apthorpe. "One of the most thoroughly digested works of the century."—Prof. Spalding. "The style is mere chit-chat. I do not believe that Burnet intentionally lied, but he was so much prejudiced, that he took no pains to find out the truth."—Dr. Johnson, in Boswell's Life.

Dr. Samuel Clarke's Essays. "The most serious treatises Dr. C. ever wrote." "Very useful in all families."—Whiston. "Destitute of originality and acuteness; nor is there any thing in the style to compensate for the mediocrity of thought."—Cunningham.

Quaresmii Elucidatio terrae sanctae. "Not much esteemed."—Walch. "The most valuable work on biblical geography ever printed."—Orme.

Gifford's Translation of Juvenal. "The best version ever made of a classical author."—Sir Walter Scott. "The baldest, and in many parts the most offensive of all the translations of Juvenal."—Hazlitt.

Aikins' General Biography. "Evinces sound judgment, manly freedom, and correct taste."—Roscoe. "A worthless compilation."—Gifford.

Echard's General Eccles. History, to A. D. 313. "The best of its kind."—Prideaux. "Of little value."—Lowndes.

Jortin's Remarks on Eccles. History. "Pithy, learned, candid, and acute."—Dibdin. "Full of manly sense, ingenious strictures, and profound erudition."—Vicess. Knox. "A vulgar caricature, distinguished not more for heartlessness and the absence of every noble feeling, than for the author's shameful ignorance of the subject."—Dowling. "There are few authors to whom I am so much indebted."—Dr. Parr.

Fuller's Church History of Britain. "Even the most serious and authentic parts are so interlaced with pun and quibble, that it looks as if he had designed to ridicule our Church."—Bishop Nicholson. "Simply a caricature of history, and a systematic violation of all its proprieties. Never was there such a medley."—Henry Rogers. "There are only two writers of the genuine history of our Church who deserve the name of historians—Collier and Fuller."—Bishop Warburton. "One of the most remarkable books in the language; the varied powers of learning, sagacity, pathos, wit, humor, and imagination, all animating the pages of a Church history."—Henry Reed. "Sensible, pious, candid."—Bickersteth.

Prettyman's Elements of Theology. "Well arranged, the reasoning clear and solid, well adapted for students in theology, and may be read with advantage by the most experienced divine."—Bishop Marsh. "Merely shows how a creed may be made to signify any thing or nothing."—Williams.

Milner's Church History. "Eminently pious; an estimable treatise in the very spirit of the sacred writers."—Bickersteth. "Milner was destitute of the information necessary to an ecclesiastical historian."—Dowling. "The book has no intrinsic value, and will sink into total and merited neglect."—Dr. Hugh J. Ross.

Dunlop's History of Fiction. "He has executed a defective plan in rather a superficial manner."—Lond. Quart. Review. "An agreeable miscellany, which discovers uncommon information and learning."—Edinb. Review.

Beattie's Essay on Truth. "Beattie's Essay is, I believe, every day more liked; at least, I like it more, as I look upon it more."—Dr. Johnson, in Boswell's Life. "Beattie's book is even more remarkable for being abusive and acrimonious, than for its defects in argument and originality."—Edinburg Review.

Hallam's Constitutional Hist. of England. "Acrimonious, arrogant, unjust, ill-tempered." "The production of a decided partisan."—Southey, in Lond. Quart. Review. 37 : 194. "Eminently judicial." "Its whole spirit is that of the bench, not of the bar." "Calm, steady, acute, profound. The most impartial book we ever read."—T. B. Macauley, Edinb. Rev. 48 : 96.

The following are the prominent features which distinguish this undertaking from any other of its kind.

1. The alphabetical arrangement of topics, with writers annexed, instead of the usual alphabetical arrangement of authors, with their writings annexed.

2. The multiplication of heads, so as to comprehend not only principal subjects, but the widest range of theological literature. The number of heads, not counting those which merely refer to others, is over two thousand.

3. The magnitude of the work, comprising, as it does, about seventy thousand citations.* This number is perhaps nearly doubled by the extensive lists of books, which are adduced under particular heads. See the table of such heads at the end of the book.

4. The including of the great Reviews, secular and religious. Unlike pamphlets and single sermons, these are bound, and accessible. A large amount of the best theological literature is thus made available.

5. The analytical arrangement of the best English sermons. These contain a great treasure of both doctrinal and practical theology, and the number of my references to them is proportionably large, some articles consisting mainly of such, though only bound volumes are noticed.

6. The introduction of a wide range of authors not theological Nearly every head contains such references, and some are made up of them almost entirely.†

7. The insertion of the names of prominent characters, scriptural and ecclesiastical, with their biographies, works, and the critics

* Lowndes' Bibliographer's Manual, though embracing all departments of knowledge, contains but about fifty thousand authors. Allibone's Dictionary of Authors, designed to name every writer in the English language, even of an ephemeral pamphlet, embraces but thirty thousand authors.

† See Budhism, Capital punishment, Eleusinian mysteries, Ethnology, Geology, Hinduism, Mesmerism, Phrenology, Palestine, etc. etc.

upon them. Great assistance is thus furnished for investigating the history of sects and doctrines.

8. The separation of writers on controverted subjects into three divisions, viz.: for, against, and historical. Every order, sect, and school, ancient or modern, is fairly presented, as far as is in my power. Leading men, of existing sects, have been written to for lists of their best writers, and the result, though sometimes helpful, has shown how much even they needed such a book of reference.

9. The numerous references to books which do not, by their titles, indicate their subject; thus furnishing aid which no ordinary catalogues could supply.

10. The work is brought down to recent publications

To three classes of persons I hope good service is here rendered.

1. To authors, in furnishing them both assistance and restraint. To write well, a man must know to what extent and in what manner his subject has been treated by others. He may be wise, but writers, of whom he is ignorant, may have been more so. He may think he will enlighten the world, when his theme has been already better handled. It is not uncommon for an author to say in his preface that had he known the existence of a certain book, he would have made his own better, or not written at all. Active minds often adopt views unlike those of their cotemporaries, and perhaps lead off a party, not aware that similar notions have been published, refuted, and forgotten. Want of extensive reading is the root of many heresies and superstitions.

2. To students, in showing them where they may find desired knowledge. Without such aid, they may stand in a large library, or even in their own, with all needed assistance at hand, and yet be helpless. Next to knowing a thing, is to know where to obtain the information; and as no one can know much, the latter attainment, if extensive, is, on the whole, the better. The student is here introduced to the great minds of the past and the present, and taught who of them and what portions of their works will answer his inquiries or resolve his doubts.

3. Purchasers of books for public or private theological libraries, or the theological department of general libraries, will here be shown how to make the collection symmetrical (a quality which few libraries possess), as well as comprehensive and complete.

I am quite conscious of having made a very imperfect book. One life is not long enough, nor one man's knowledge of books extensive enough, to make such a work complete. But as the owner becomes familiar with this volume, he will find the undesirable omissions both fewer and less important than he suspected; for books which might have been named under several heads, are given but under one, and the apparent omission is supplied elsewhere. I present the result of my labors for just what it is—an arranged catalogue of many thousand books, in a single department of literature. These are books which theologians will never discard, so that what I have done is done forever. Future publications will be added by future editors, but they will add, from past publications, few of those which I have omitted.

I do not presume that my book will incur no censures but such as it deserves. Some will think many of the references should have been omitted, and some, that many more should have been added. Some will find fault for the sake of seeming to know more than the author, and some for the love of fault-finding. Some out of ignorance, or lack of reflection, will condemn real excellencies; and some will judge me by a standard which cannot be reached. I have pursued my work in full view of such considerations, content to provide for future theologians a labor-saving apparatus.

"Si quid novisti rectius istis, Candidus imperti: si non, his utere mecum."
HORACE. EP. VI.

PHILADELPHIA, 1868.

NOTICE.—The Latin titles occurring among English writers, are not there by mistake. It was once customary to give such titles to books in our own language.

When a writer's name is in brackets, it indicates that the book was published anonymously.

Some Reviews have several times commenced a "New Series," and some have been reprinted with altered paging. This has made some unavoidable confusion as to such references; but the only alternative was to insert them with this disadvantage, or omit them altogether.

"A Bibliotheca, or account of books in English, continued to the present day, is a desideratum."—Bickersteth.

"A book which treats only of other books, is the touchstone of a genuine lover of literature. He will handle it with gentle reverence, and keep it at his right hand for frequent consultation; while mere readers would throw the book aside as a dull and worthless catalogue."—London Quarterly Review.

"Book Catalogues are to men of letters what the compass and lighthouse are to the mariner, the digested index to the lawyer, the dispensatory to the physician, the sign-post to the traveller: in short, they are the concordances of literature."—Western Memorabilia.

"Books can give new views of life, and teach us how to live. They soothe the grieved, the stubborn they chastise. Fools they admonish, and the wise confirm."—Crabbe.

"A library is not like a dead city of stones, yearly crumbling, and needing repair: but like a spiritual tree. There it stands and yields its precious fruit, from year to year, and from age to age:—thaumaturgic, for it can persuade men."—Carlyle.

"Theology is by far the most voluminous of all the sciences. There is none that comes nearly up to it, in the amount, or what may be termed the dimensions of its authorship. It is a colossus of most precious and solid material, brought together by the multiplied efforts of a most prodigious industry, and elaborated into form by the skill of many thousand intellects; some of which equal, both in power and achievement, the most gigantic of those spirits that ever signalized themselves in any of the walks of philosophic investigation."—Chalmers.

"Hi sunt magistri qui nos instruunt sine virgis et ferula, sine pane et pecunia. Si accedis, non dormiunt; si inquiris, non se abscondunt; non remurmurant si oberres; cachinnos nesciunt si ignores."—Richard de Bury.

HEBREW.

Bombergii Concordentiæ Ebrææ. 1523. (This is the concordance of Rabbi Nathan, edited by Bomberg.)
Buxtorfii Concordantiæ Ebrææ. 1632.
Calasii Conc. Sac. bibliorum Ebræicorum. 1621. (An invaluable work, serving not only as a Concordance, but as a Lexicon. By the side of the Hebrew words is the Latin translation of them; and in the margin, the differences between the Septuagint and Vulgate versions. The work is in four large folios, printed at the expense of the Pope. The edition of London, 1747, is the most esteemed.)
Fuerstii Conc. Vet. Test. Heb. atque Chaldaiæ. 1840. (An improved edition of Buxtorf, with indexes, tables, &c.)
Lanckischi Conc. Bib. Germanico-Ebraico-Græcæ Deutsche.
Nathan (Rabbi) Concord. Hebraica. 1523.
Noldii Conc. partic. Ebræo-chaldaicarum. 1675. (The edition of 1734 is the best.)
Ravii Fons Zionis. 1677. (An abridgment of Buxtorf.)

Symson's Alphabetical Concordance.
Williams' Concordance. (Gives the corresponding Hebrew root of every word, and the rendering in the authorized English version.)

ENGLISH.

Gibson's Concordance. 1536. (Of the New Testament only.)
Marbecke's Concordance; that is to saie, a worke wherein by the Ordre of the letters A B C, ye maie redely find any worde conteigned in the whole Bible, so often as it is there mencioned. 1550. (The first Concordance to the English Bible. J. Fox, in his Martyrology, first edition, states that it was the chief cause of the Author's martyrdom.)

It is of no consequence what general councils have done, except as part of the history of mankind. They have not contributed either to the peace or the purity of the church. Those who would search further, will find plenty of books named by BRUNET, Manuale du libraire; CAVE, Hist. literaria scriptorum conciliorum; SALMON, Etude des conciles. The catalogue of a single London bookseller, DAVID NUTT, 1851, offers several hundred on this subject, besides those given above.

Simpson on Religious opinions.
Wake's Epistles of the Apostolical Fathers.
Warburton's Julian.
Whiston's Primitive Christianity.

Collections of the Patristic writings, and editions of the separate fathers, are exceedingly numerous. Those of DUPIN, WALCH, OUDIN, and HEFELE, are either of them sufficient. NUTT, in his sale catalogue for 1857, offers no less than 923 works, or editions, of the Fathers. The most splendid, as well as most recent, is the uniform edition of MIGNE, begun in 1839, and completed 1861.

The following list of the early fathers, in the order of time, will be convenient for reference.

1*st Century.*—Barnabas, Clemens Romanus.
2*d Century.*—Hermas, Ignatius, Polycarp, Papias, Justin Martyr, Irenæus, Athanagoras, Theophilus, Theodosian, Clemens Alexandrinus.
3*d Century.*—Tertullian, Minutius Felix, Hippolytus, Origen, Gregory Thaumaturgus, Dionysius, Cyprian.
4*th Century.*—Lactantius, Athanasius, Cyril, Isidore, Eusebius, Chrysostom, Hilary, Epiphanius, Gregory Naz., Basil, Ambrose, Jerome, Theodoret, Gregory Nys.
5*th Century.*—Augustin, Arnobius.

Books of this class are numerous, and of some of them there are various editions. The above are sufficient. The Papal church circulates its "indexes" with much reserve; and they are not generally obtainable by Protestants. They furnish a ready and complete reference to every book, chapter, or page, where anti-Papal sentiments may be found; a knowledge which no opponent could otherwise obtain. An original and complete enumeration of the Indexes previous to 1560, is given by VERGERIUS, Catalogus Hæreticorum. The work of MENDHAM, however, is amply sufficient for most purposes.

It is impossible to separate with precision the writers on an intermediate place from those on an intermediate state. They often confound the two subjects. All Papal writers, and most Protestant, hold the latter doctrine. The books here cited are, for the most part, not controversial, nor wholly on the subject, but discuss it among other doctrines. See a list of over a hundred Latin and German writers on this subject in ALGER'S Doctrine of a future life. Appendix.

This once great and powerful sect—about as orthodox on the whole as the Roman Church of its time—was assailed by hosts of writers, none of which were more bitter than Cyril Alexandrinus. They are now few and feeble, and only their history is interesting. Buddeus, in his Isagoge, gives a list of writers on this subject, pro and con, previous to 1700; but scarcely any of them can be found now.

, England, during the 17th century, produced innumerable publications on this controversy. Most of these are now obsolete, or very scarce: but the above can be had. I distinguish Non-conformists from Dissenters. The latter still exist and multiply. The former are those who were turned out of their parishes, in the 17th century, and their followers. I may not have divided all the citations accurately, as the terms are by some used interchangeably.

Various writers of eminence mention the female Pope as a fact of history, without discussing the proofs—such as Marian, a Scotch monk, 1060; Martin Polaccus, Abp. of Cosenza, 1277; Amabric, an Augustine Prior, 1362; and Korner, a Dominican, 1435. See a collection of the arguments by all the principal writers who reject the story of Pope Joanne, in Allatius, named above.

At the Reformation, writers on this subject were innumerable. Just after the Reformation, most theological writers handled the question, more or less. When Papacy seemed about to be restored in England, another multitude of works, on both sides of the subject, appeared. The above extensive list comprises most of the best treatises now accessible. Those who desire to look further into the controversy will find hundreds of other writers on both sides in PECK'S Complete catalogue of all the discourses written for and against Popery in the time of James II., 1779; CLAGGETT'S Present state (1687) of the controversy between the Church of England and the Church of Rome; and in LOWNDES' British Librarian. The last named quotes over 900 English writers on the subject.

Rationalism differs from Neology chiefly in that it is the more recent form of the Theology which has prevailed for some years in Germany. I distinguish Rationalists from Atheists in that they acknowledge a Supreme Power; and from Deists in that they are professed Christians. The writers cited are a mere specimen, but are more than sufficient.

It is not possible to draw an exact line between Neology and Rationalism, as they are but phases of the same thing. For other writers, see SAINTE, Histoire critique de Rationalismus, jusq. 1841; and STAUDLIN'S Geschichte d. Rationalismus.

THEOLOGICAL INDEX.

BY

HOWARD MALCOM, D.D.

One Volume, Royal Octavo. $4.00.

This important production has been almost the life-work of Dr. Malcom, and no Library can hereafter be deemed complete which does not include this work.

COMMENDATORY NOTICES

FROM DISTINGUISHED SCHOLARS WHO HAVE EXAMINED THE PROOF-SHEETS OF THIS WORK.

From Pres. Walker, of Harvard College.

"In looking over the advance sheets of your Theological Index, I have been struck with the amount of labor it must have required, to collect and classify so many titles of books on theoretical and practical religion, and the kindred topics. But, it bears no proportion to the labor it will save others. The need of such a work is more and more felt. Some theologians, as you say in your preface, may perhaps wonder at some of your omissions. But the index is not intended for them so much as for the working clergy, who, in consulting or purchasing books, need just such a guide, and will be greatly helped by the one you have provided."

From Charles Hodge, D.D., of Princeton Theological Seminary.

I have examined the sheets of your Theological Index, for which I thank you. The work of Winer on the same general plan is not adapted to American students, as his references are so generally to works not accessible to them.

I have no doubt that your book will be found adapted to meet a want long and widely felt, and prove useful in a high degree.

From Geo. R. Bliss, D.D., University at Lewisburg, Pa.

Your book will certainly fill a place now entirely unoccupied, and will be indispensable to all studious clergymen, to libraries, and to scholars generally. You have facilitated the labors of a multitude of Christian scholars, through generations to come.

From Prof. Hackett, D.D., Newton Theological Institution.

I have examined your sheets with much interest. I think well of the plan. The book will enable those who wish to form a library to select books judiciously, and afterward to use them with advantage. It is not enough to have books in our possession; we need also an index of their contents, at the right moment, to show us whether the information we seek is within our reach. Your book supplies that want. I am sure it will lay very many persons under lasting obligations to your industry, skill, and scholarship.

From S. S. Schmuker, D.D., Emeritus Professor of Theology in the Theological Seminary of the Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Pa.

After having examined the several sheets of your Bibliographical Manual or Lexicon, which you kindly sent me, I take great pleasure in bearing testimony in favor of its diversified and decided utility.

This work differs from the more systematic productions of Noesselt and Winer, in that it does not follow the authors' names, nor give the authors' birth and death, as well as the offices they sustained. But it makes a selection of several thousand topics, embracing every important subject on which students may desire information, and under each of these arranges the authors who discuss that subject.

While, therefore, the work does not furnish as much material to gratify the curiosity of the critical, it affords a vast amount of information more valuable to students, pastors, and preachers, because more available for the purposes of professional life. One who has access to but a moderate library will, by the aid of this work, seldom fail to find important material for his purpose, and I cannot doubt it will meet a cordial reception from those whose benefit it contemplates.
